3,000 Short Miles See New Mexico Crime Taken Seriously Old Britain Pays

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1926, by Star Co.

A TRIP ACROSS the continent is nothing. Three thousand miles of cities, towns, villages and farms go by like a moving picture. The comfort in travel is absolute, thanks to George M. Pullman, to whom this country should erect a fine monument, and to the ability of American railroad builders.

You settle down in the train in New York, suddenly you look at the Pacific Ocean and it seems only an hour.

NOW THE TRAIN rolls through New Mexico, with colored hills, beautiful mountains, their tops white with snow, deep gullies worn by rushing waters, Indians in bright head-dress waving their hands at the train and a climate that

HUB MAN DEAD, 3 HURT IN QUINCY CAR CRASH

One Boston man was killed and three others were seriously injured today when the automobile in which they were riding was wrecked in a collision with a trolley car at Washington and South streets, Quincy.

The dead:

Robert T. Brien, 48, St. Germain street, Back Bay.

The injured are:

Fred Burgess, No. 3 Leonard court, Dorchester, at Quincy Hospital.

John Chalsse, No. 45 Leonard street Dorchester, Fore River Hospital.

Ralph Nyland, Tonawanda street, Dorchester, Fore River Hospital.

Passengers in the street cars were shaken up as the car stopped short after ploughing into the side of the automobile and hurling it from the tracks.

With side-curtains up, the view of the driver, Chalsse was clear-cut as he drove across the tracks in turning from Washington street in-

STEEL OFF AS BUYING WAVE SWEEPS MARKET

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 18.—Buying of railroad shares in anticipation of larger dividends or capital readjustments sustained the stock market today in the face of a heavy profit-taking movement embracing U. S. Steel and other leading industrials. Trading followed a more normal pace as yesterday's speculative excitement subsided.

After a firm opening, U. S. Steel was forced to absorb heavy realizing sales which carried the price down to 133¼, a point under the previous close and 2 points under the record high established yesterday.

Atchison Railway gave the most spectacular exhibition of strength, climbing 3 points to a record high level above 167. It was accompanied into new high ground by Rock Island, Reading and Erie. General Motors was up around 3 and National Biscuit set a new 1926 high.

The closing was irregular. Total sales approximated 1,000,000 shares

COOLIDGE BACKS BIG NAVY PROGRAM, AGREES TO SPEND $105,000,000

Washington, Dec. 18 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge and the House Naval Affairs Committee today agreed to a $105,000,000 naval building program to place the American Navy among the first in the world, it was announced today by Representative Butler (R.), Pennsylvania, chairman.

The decision marks an important victory in the House in its fight against the administration's economy program.

In his budget message, the President urged Congress not to authorize construction of the remaining three of the eight cruisers provided for in 1924.

The program agreed upon today calls for building 10 cruisers to cost $10,500,000 each, with provision that the program may be suspended whenever the President so decides.

The naval committee was represented at the conference by Representatives Butler, Andrew, Republican, Massachusetts, Coyle, Republican, Pennsylvania; Vinson, Democrat, Georgia and Drewery, Democrat, Virginia.

Butler introduced the authorization bill in the House today. It said the cruisers would be built in accord with the Washington Arms Conference.

It will give the United States twenty-five cruisers, totalling 225,000 tons, by the end of 1931. Japan, Butler said, has twenty-nine cruisers, totalling 190,000 tons. Great Britain, he explained, would still surpass the American navy in cruiser power.

Homeless Holiday

Mother with Sick Babies Faces Christmas Ejection

How would you like to be ejected from your home during Christmas week because you couldn't pay the rent? Where would you go, and do you think that Christmas would be a day of good cheer for you and your kiddies?

Well, folks, that is the situation that is facing a family living in Vernon street, Salem, according to a letter written to the Christmas Goodfellow Editor of the Boston Evening American, appealing for assistance.

"The landlady where I live," writes this Salem mother, "has told me if I do not pay my rent next week, which is Christmas week, I will have to get out, as I owe her three weeks' rent, amounting to $18. That would make a hard Christmas for me and my small family of two little babies, both of whom are sick.

"I have just recently recovered from an illness of three weeks, and it almost breaks my heart to be compelled to ask anyone for help, but what am I to do? My husband who has been ill for eight weeks, will do any kind of work if you can only get something for him to

FEAR MANY DIE AS TANK CRASHES, PULLING IN 3 WALLS OF BIG FACTORY

Philadelphia, Dec. 18.—Twenty girls are believed to have been entombed and swept to possible death beneath an avalanche of debris at the candy factory of P. H. Wunderly and Company here today, when an immense water tank crashed through the roof of the building, tearing its way through three floors and causing one wall of the structure to fall inward.

The heads of one man and three girls were reported seen protruding from the ruins.

The tank, containing 5,000 gallons of water, crashed without warning. The crash of one of the walls carried with it a number of high tension wires. The wires dangled in the street and held up the work of rescues for about ten minutes until the power was shut off.

Ambulances rushed to the scene from nearby hospitals and doctors and nurses waited for the victims to be carried out.

As each victim was taken from the wreckage, she was rushed to a hospital.

More than 100 firemen worked frantically in the ruins.

They came upon a boy, about 17

MAYOR BLOCKS CITY PAY RAISE PLAN FOR 10,000

Hopes of 10,000 city employes for pay increases as Christmas presents were shattered today when it became known at City Hall that Mayor Nichols had pigeonholed the report of the wage standardization committee while the budget for the coming year is being made up.

On top of that came announcement that the Finance Commission, although its reports have been ignored by mayors and city councils in previous administrations, is again attempted to prune city depart-

ONE FROZEN TO DEATH

One man was frozen to death today in Massachusetts, while thousands suffered in Boston in the intense cold wave which the official weather forecast predicts will continue through the night.

Boston City Hospital treated one person for cold exposure. She was Evelyn Doherty, 19, of Magazine street, Cambridge, who collapsed at Boylston and Exeter streets.

Starting at midnight the mercury descended to 7 above zero in the Hub weather bureau thermometers, but street temperatures throughout the city and suburbs were only slightly above the zero mark during the forenoon, rising somewhat later.

An unidentified man, about 60 years old, was found dead from cold in Springfield.

Fifteen below zero was reported

COYNE WILL NOT GIVE COUNCIL BEEF FACTS

Representative Francis X. Coyne of Dorchester today flatly refused to accede to the request of the Governor's Council to place before that body evidence to substantiate his charges that bad beef is being served in State institutions.

In refusing to comply with the Council's request Coyne said he was convinced what the Council is really trying to do is to block legislative action by hushing up the facts.

Coyne declared he is convinced that the council, an executive body, is interfering with the legislative branch of the government in which

"What a simpleton I would be to have a rubber stamp body like the council make an investigation of these charges," he said "a closed corporation, holding star chamber sessions. This looks to me like an attempt at whitewash and to block a real investigation by the Legislature.

LANGLEY IS PAROLED AFTER YEAR IN PRISON

Washington, Dec. 18 (I.N.S.)—Former Representative John W. Langley of Kentucky was paroled from Atlanta Penitentiary today after serving one year of a three-year sentence for conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act. He was convicted while serving in the House and re-elected afterward but resigned.

Langley was sentenced in connection with alleged illegal withdrawals of liquor from a Kentucky warehouse.

His wife was elected in November to his seat in Congress.

NAVY SLEUTHS JOIN IN SEARCH FOR DR. WALSH

While "dry navy" sleuths were today working with Boston police on the theory that Dr. Thomas E. Walsh was smuggled aboard a ship out on Rum Row, newly gained information pointed to the possibility of his being aboard the Hamburg-American liner Thuringia, now nearing Ireland.

The Thuringia, bound from New York to Queenstown, anchored off Boston Light on Wednesday and took aboard 17 Boston passengers from the tug Neponset.

In connection with the trans-shipping of baggage and small freight, seventeen longshoremen also went aboard the Thuringia and according to the police the officials of the steamship line did not make a check on these men to see if all returned to the tug. Six visitors to the Thuringia were duly checked.

Until the vessel reaches Queenstown there is no means now of ascertaining if a man answering the description of Dr. Walsh is aboard.

Police were also running down a

CAMBRIDGE FIRES ROUT 5 FAMILIES INTO COLD

Five families were driven to the streets in zero temperatures by two fires, one of them believed to have been of incendiary origin, in Cambridge today.

The office of the State Fire Marshall George Neal was requested to make an investigation of a blaze that swept through the two and one-half story wooden building at No 312 Broadway, extending through to No. 176 Norfolk street, which caused damage estimated at $3,000.

This fire started from a mysterious explosion in the rear of the confectionary shop of Michael Johnson, on the first floor of the Broadway side of the building.

Mrs. Margaret Dorney, who lived on the second floor, was awakened by the explosion and aroused other members of her family. Her daughters, Margaret, 22, and Elizabeth, 25, assisted the woman to the street

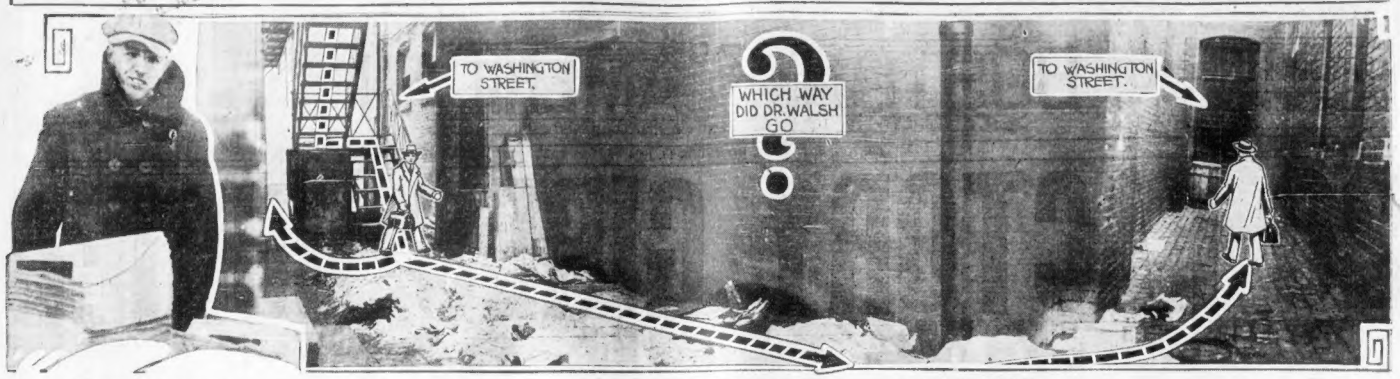
While Detectives Watched ~ Which Way Did Elusive ~ Dr. Walsh Leave Home?



MISSED BY NEWSIE

Gerald Clark, who every morning sold Dr. Thomas E. Walsh his newspaper at foot of "L" station steps, hasn't seen Walsh for a week.

WHEN DR. WALSH FLED WHICH WAY DID HE TURN?

Did the South End physician, convicted in connection with the death of Edith L. Greene, leave his house by a cellar window, or by some adjoining house window, or did he sneak down the fire escape? This is a question detectives are asking. Three were watching the house in Washington street, near Northampton street, South End. The picture shows possible avenues of Walsh's escape. Dr. Walsh is believed to have found haven on a vessel along Rum Row. (See Story on Page 1.)

WAGE INCREASE ROLL HALTED

schedule of increases for city employes the latter have expected a general wage increase. The committee reported in their favor. The committee was headed by Charles F. Fox, budget commissioner.

The committee divided the city employes into seven groups and made a study of conditions that in some instances showed rank injustice. It agreed on the first report of its kind ever made in Boston and recommended establishment of a $750,000 fund that in future will give the city employes a general wage increase.

For instance, as explained today by one man who had studied the subject, an employe who now is getting $2,500 and found deserving of $2,800, the fund would bring him to that figure by gradual increases.

When the Mayor first decided to appoint the committee he asked Rupert S. Carven, former budget commissioner, to head it. Carven refused. He expressed himself as unfavorable to the plan.

RECORD TAX RATE.

It is said that as Boston now has the highest tax rate in its history, $31.80 a thousand, the Mayor felt the city should go slowly in adding expense.

The Mayor also has found himself facing objections by Charles L. Carr, finance commissioner, who has already strongly urged against all wage increases, the cutting out of needless employes.

For the last few days the Finance Commission has been calling department heads before it and asking questions on the needs of employes and this leads to the belief that the Finance Commission will again recommend purging of the payrolls.

Only members of the engineering and inspectional departments, with a few clerks are sure of increases, as they are already operating on the so-called step increase plan.

bers out of a total of eight, under the Republican gerrymanders of the past few years, has been to block the constitutional powers of a Governor when that governor happens to be a Democrat.

DOESN'T WANT WHITEWASH.

"I demand an investigation, not a whitewash. The only way that a real probe can be obtained is to have it carried out by a legislative committee which will be open to the public and no effort made at concealing the facts.

"Perhaps one of the most needed pieces of legislation which the incoming Grand Court should give attention to, as indicated by this deliberate hushing attempt is to provide that hereafter all meetings of the executive council be in public."

REMEDY IN PUBLICITY.

In his letter to the Governor and council, Coyne said:

"I fully realize that such a condition of affairs calls for immediate attention in order that it may be stopped, but owing to the publicity already given throughout the state to my charges, and my order already filed in the office of the clerk of the House of Representatives, I am advised that immediate attention has already been given to the situation.

"The investigation of the conduct of the said commission (the commission on administration and finance), which I seek, therefore relates to a condition which existed prior to the time of filing my order and which in my opinion calls for a legislative investigation with a view to bringing about needed legislation which will forever make impossible a recurrence of such a deplorable situation.

"I reiterate that unfit beef has been served as food in certain State institutions. I am advised that the spotlight of publicity has quickly improved the situation. I believe, however, that legislative action must be taken to prevent a recurrence of this condition."

BOY FREED OF STEALING GRANDFATHER'S WATCH

Accused of stealing a family heirloom from his grandfather, after being given twenty-five cents to ward off starvation, eighteen-year-old Joseph Frost of Massachusetts avenue was freed today by Judge Creed after the grandfather firmly refused to withdraw the charge.

"Do you think I would be so ungrateful as to steal the watch after he gave me a quarter for food?" young Frost asked the court.

Judge Creed requested the grandfather, William A. Smith, to drop the accusation. When this was refused he found Frost not guilty.

WALSH SOUGHT BY DRY NAVY

"tip" that a South End man, known to have been friendly with Dr. Walsh, is running messages between the fugitive and persons in Boston.

Search for the missing doctor, who is wanted for sentence in connection with the death of Edith L. Greene, dismembered victim in the "cardboard box tragedy," took police and Federal agents to the South End to ferret out bootleggers and rum-runners said to be on friendly terms fraternity to aid Dr. Walsh.

Twenty-six dealers in the contraband had taken an "oath of silence" as far as Dr. Walsh is concerned, May Hunters did discover that a large collection had been taken up among the rum-dealing fraternity to aid Dr. Walsh in his legal fight, and they are of the opinion that a large part of this sum might have been devised to aiding the man to escape.

Many of the rum-handlers in the district are known to deal directly with the ships on Rum Row, so that their interest in Dr. Walsh's case lent added credence to the theory that the physician is on board a rum-runner.

In addition to the money raised by the rum dealers the investigators discovered that Mrs. Walsh's magnificent sable coat had been pawned at a South End pawn shop, the gun advanced being $400.

A man whose description in general was like that of Dr. Walsh was reported to have leaped to his death in the harbor from a ferryboat at 7 o'clock this morning. Passengers said they saw him leap, while deckhands said a man's hat blew overboard, nothing else.

SUIT AGAINST SURETIES.

Meanwhile District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien is losing no time in bringing action against those who went bonds for Dr. Walsh in securing his $15,000 bail. He ordered Assistant District Attorney Eugene Harrington to bring action against the six sureties on the bail bond, and this action was filed.

The suits in the case are returnable on the second Monday in February, after which a notice of 21 days must be given each of those on the surety.

The six sureties are Patrick J. Walsh, 111 Washington Heights avenue, Roslindale; Ellen J. Walsh, 15 Hacker View street, South Boston; Mary W. Walsh and Joseph H. Walsh, both of columbia road, Dorchester; Mary E. Greaney, 14 Willis street, Dorchester, and Mary E. Brown of 1 Hughes street, Quincy.

Poor of New York Suffer; Three Dead in Chicago

New York, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Winter today gave New York its coldest weather of the season.

Tobogganing 26 degrees in 12 hours, the temperature was 7 degrees above zero. A biting wind intensified the cold, driving to Bowery lodging houses more than 1,000 men, women and children, many of them wanderers in the East Side.

Watertown, which yesterday was buried under snow in a heavy storm, which covered only a comparatively small area, reported a temperature of 16 to 18 below.

In Albany the minimum reading at the Federal weather bureau was zero.

With the mercury standing at 12 degrees above zero several more men, women and children were driven to the street in Darby Pa., today when fire damaged their homes. Roberts filter plant was destroyed.

Hampered by freezing lines and reduced water pressure, firemen fought the blaze for three hours before it was brought under control.

In Chicago, although the cold wave was broken by rising temperatures, three men were dead today from exposure.

through dense smoke which filled the house.

The Dorney family had time to collect only a few articles of clothing, and were forced to take refuge in a nearby undertaking establishment.

FLAMES SPREAD FAST.

By the time the firemen had arrived the flames were racing through the entire structure and the heat had become so intense that the family of Carmillo Cararara at No. 310 Broadway, next door, was ordered to leave by the police.

The Norfolk street side of the building was occupied on the first floor by the Q. T. & S. Battery Shop, which was also ruined.

The flames worked through the building so rapidly that firemen started an investigation, which resulted in the fire marshal's office being notified.

3 FAMILIES ROUTED.

The second blaze started in a kitchen closet of the three-family house at No. 2 Columbia terrace, and worked through all the first floor rooms.

This floor of the three-story wooden dwelling was occupied by Mrs. Mary A. Collins and family and the second floor by Thomas Jamestown and family. Thomas Flynn and family lived on the third floor.

All three families were driven out in the cold and were cared for by neighbors. Matches in the closet are believed to have been the cause of the fire, which resulted in damage estimated at $2,000.

U. S. PRINCESS, WED 4 TIMES,

Paris, Dec. 18 (Universal).—"Yes, I am getting a divorce. I am fed up." Thus declared the Princess Galitzine, the former Aimee Crocker Gouraud, to Universal Service.

The Princess admitted that she is to begin an action against the 26-year-old Russian Prince whom she married four years ago, thus adding to an end another of her marital adventures.

"I do not want to say too much now, she added. "Besides, I am going to the theatre and I do not intend to spoil my evening thinking about anything disagreeable."

Princess Galitzine was Mrs. Aimee Crocker Ashe-Gillig-Gouraud.

She is daughter of the California millionaire, Edward Bryant Crocker.

She could not decide between two suits a Porter Ashe and Harry Gillig, and San Francisco society was rife with the startling story that the two men had played poker for her hand, Ashe winning with four aces.

But in a short time they were divorced and she married the loser. Another divorce, and next she married Jackson Gouraud, a song writer. He died.

He will lecture in Symphony Hall, Sunday, for the benefit of the Community Health Association. In dispatches today it was announced Commander Byrd had seen Santa on his flight over the Pole.

KINDLY OLD GENT TRAILED TO HIS TOY LAIR IN SNOWY MAINE

Proof positive that there is a Santa Claus—despite all mean, lying persons to the contrary notwithstanding—is hereby offered. Here's his photograph, and what could be truer than that? He was snapped in one of his big toy shops in South Paris, Me., counting chairs and other toys on hand for good little boys and girls. He has many, many more toys, of course.

HUBBY MUST EAT PAINT TO GET KISS

Wives can splash on as much paint as they want to and hubbys can only grit their teeth and bear it. Or, rather, that's all they can do legally, a New York court held. Mrs. Helen R. Gellert is shown sticking her lips after Dr. Lee L. Gellert lost his divorce suit on the grounds that she used too much cosmetics.

BIG RUM PLANT SEIZED IN LOWELL

Lowell, Dec. 17 (A.P.).—Prohibition and police officers worked until daybreak today in the plant of the Newtonville Manufacturing Company, dismantling the largest distillery ever found in this vicinity.

A raiding party last night broke into the plant, used for the manufacture of munitions in war time, and seized three 1000-gallon stills, other equipment, and finished and process product appraised at $100,000.

The daily output was estimated at 2,000 gallons.

BYRD ARRIVES WITH BLAST

"Real North Pole weather," said Commander Richard E. Byrd, first to fly to the Pole, as he arrived today in the Hub and faced an icy blast.

Here to lecture on his memorable flight for the benefit of the Boston Community Health Association, the flying hero was welcomed by Mrs. Lyon Weyburn, chairman of the entertainment committee in charge of the benefit tomorow night in Symphony Hall.

Women members of the reception committee shivered behind their fur wraps as the airman doffed his light coat and braved the cold wind to pose for photographers. Byrd did not shiver.

After spending a few days with his family at their Brimmer street home, he will continue his lecture tour of the country.

SANTA USING PLANES, SAYS BYRD, WHO VISITED HIM

New York, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Yes, children, there is a Santa Claus. Two Americans who have been to the top of the world say so, and he is to use airplanes and dirigibles as well as reindeer this year.

Noting that boys and girls all over the world were concerned because Santa and reindeer were not mentioned in the explorers' narratives, Henry Woodhouse, president of the Aerial League of America, wrote them. Asked whether Santa had been seen, Lincoln Ellsworth of the Norge replied:

"Absolutely. I hope the time will never come when I cannot see Santa Claus."

And this came from Commander Byrd: "How could I miss seeing Santa when I had been waiting all my life to visit his dominion?"

Ellsworth saw many reindeer. When Byrd was over the pole they were busy getting new antlers and coats for Christmas.

BROWNING SAYS HE'S 'OUTCAST FOR LOVE'

New York, Dec. 18 (I.N.S.).—Edward W. Browning, elderly millionaire, revealed today he had become a social outcast because of love for his wife, "Peaches," who is suing him for separation.

"I have given up everything in my life for that girl," he said. "Even my sister won't speak to me any more. I go nowhere, see nothing and get nothing but abuse."

Browning said he was treated like a servant by his wife before she left him.

"I never was permitted to kiss my own wife any place except on the hand," he stated. "And yet I did everything I could for her. I bought her the finest orchids I could find, and she would throw them in my face or trample them on the floor, saying they were not big enough or fresh enough.

'APED SHEIKS,' SAYS WIFE

"He thinks he's a movie star," said Mrs. George J. Ouillet, No. 1 of South Boston, when told today that her husband in Brattleboro, Vt., had married 17-year-old Daisy May Jacobs.

"I suppose he is aping the adventure of his favorite screen sheiks. For three years he has sent nothing to support our two children and myself and now he has married an innocent little girl up there."

Ouillet was convicted of bigamy after his second wife's father learned that he was already married. South Boston police hold a warrant for his arrest charging non-support.

Father Philip J. O'Donnell, pastor of St. James' Church, Harrison avenue. Photo taken today.

FR. O'DONNELL IS HONORED

Parishioners streamed into the rectory of St. James' Church, Harrison avenue, today, to extend congratulations to Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell, the pastor, following his celebration of an anniversary Mass in observance of 46 years in the priesthood.

The church was filled. In accordance with custom, Father O'Donnell gave Holy Communion to children of the parish.

"Father Phil," as the veteran priest is known over a far wider area than his parish, was ordained in 1880, by the late Cardinal Gibbons. For 20 years he was pastor of St. Philips Church, Roxbury, and for 14 years has been pastor at St. James'.

Telegrams and messages of congratulation were received from far and wide.

'S.O.S.' CALL TO ELKS MEETING

Exalted Ruler Daniel J. Kane of Boston Lodge of Elks, No. 10, issued an "S. O. S." call today to the 8,000 members of the lodge to attend, without fail, a special meeting in the magnificent new Elks' Home on Tremont street at 2 o'clock tomorow afternoon.

This will be the first special meeting of the lodge since the new home was opened. The exalted ruler announces that business of extra import is to come before the meeting. It is understood that several Boston dignitaries will be on hand to give their opinions on the matter.

Incidentally, the meeting will give an opportunity for any members who have not yet inspected the new home to view the structure through all its fourteen stories. They will be able to see the splendid ballroom, assembly hall, the elaborate catering facilities, numerous guest rooms, billiard rooms, bowling alleys and other amusement and entertainmen; equipment of the place.

Live Wire Fires Taxi

Pawtucket, R. I., Dec. 18 (A.P.).—A fully charged trolley wire fell this morning in the heart of the city, striking a taxicab and setting the car on fire. John McGill, the driver, and Joseph Ryan, a passenger, leaped from the cab and escaped injury.

THOUSANDS IN L TRAINS HELD UP BY OPEN DRAW

Thousands of shoppers, workers and other noon rush hour elevated patrons were held up today while the new draw of the Warren bridge in Charlestown was opened three times, tying up all train service.

El officials would not lay the blame on any one for opening the draw at the height of the rush hour, but condemned the act as showing little intelligence. The draw was opened the first time at 12:01 and closed 5 minutes later. It was several more minutes before the trains could safely get under way in both directions.

At 12:15 the draw tenders opened up and closed down 5 minutes later. Again it took some time for the trains safely to proceed. Meantime downtown subway platforms were packed with milling men and women. The excitement was intense and El officials were hard pushed to keep the waiting crowds away from the pits.

Each time the draw closed the Elevated managed to slip a train or two southbound. These were packed to the doors as soon as they reached Sullivan square and had to be handled carefully. On the downtown platforms parts a waited in some cases an hour before they could board a train.

The draw opened for the third time at 12:39 and closed down at 12:45. It took another hour to restore traffic to normal.

Train Wreck Forces Hundreds to Walk; 1 Hurt

Thousands of commuters were delayed and one man was seriously injured as a result of a baggage car on the 6:02 a. m. Newport train from the South station jumping the rails today as it passed over a switch.

The injured man, Michael McAuliffe, was foreman of a wrecking crew sent from the Dover street yards to clear the blocked tracks. He was struck by an inbound B. & A. train as he was working on the derailed baggage car.

He was rushed to the Massachusetts General Hospital where it was found several of his ribs were fractured and he was suffering from internal injuries. His name was placed on the danger list.

When the baggage car jumped the rails it had just passed the signal tower between the South and Back Bay stations. The train came to a halt, but the derailed car blocked all traffic on south bound tracks.

The accident occurred when a dozen or more trains were moving, inward and outward. Many were held up from fifteen minutes to an hour. All trains coming through the Back Bay station were held up and hundreds of commuters had either to walk to work or take street cars.

The wrecking crew cut off the two rear baggage cars of the Newport train and it proceeded. The 6:45 train to Readville was forty-two minutes late. The 7:35 to Canton was ten minutes late, being less affected than any of the others.

Meanwhile, the injured man, lives at No. 245 K street, South Boston. According to his condition he was working under the derailed car trying to adjust jacks when the Boston & Albany train approached. He stepped from beneath the car and was struck.

Passengers on inward-bound train of the Providence division suffered the greatest delay. Trains from Providence, New Bedford, Taunton, New Haven, Franklin, Readville and Dedham were delayed from 25 minutes to one hour. The Fall River boat train arrived at the South Station 40 minutes behind schedule.

BOSTON FOOD PRICES HIGHER IN NOVEMBER

Washington, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—An increase of 3 per cent. in retail food prices for the month ending November 15 over the previous month was recorded today in Labor Department statistics, but the level was still 3¼ per cent. below that of November, 1925.

Fresh eggs, with an increase of 13 per cent., showed the highest price rise for the month, while pork chops dropped 10 per cent. Boston, Buffalo, Fall River, Manchester, N. Y., and Scranton, Pa., showed 2 per cent. increase in price levels.

CHRISTMAS FIRE WARNING GIVEN

Because of the menace to life and property from fires, which have turned many Christmas festivities into tragedies, Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foote today urged the public to observe these precautions:

CHRISTMAS TREES—Do not decorate with flimsy material hung too near candles or lights. Discard decorations made of paper, cotton or other inflammable material unless treated with some other non-flammable stuff. Be sure to set the tree firmly so that in reaching for things it cannot tip over. Get rid of the tree immediately after the holidays as it readily ignites when the leaves and branches become dry.

CANDLES—Do not permit them to be used where electricity can be substituted. Even sets with an electric battery for a candle affect room lights. Don't permit children to light or relight candles while the parents are away. Keep matches out of their reach. If you must have a candle in the window see that it is safe. Make sure that the wiring is safe.

MERCHANTS—Remember that the installation of amateur electric wiring and use of inflammable materials in decorations may void insurance in case of fire. Watch employees and restrain them from lighting pipes, cigars or cigarettes while in the building filled with holiday shoppers. Hang fire extinguishers on the walls in plain sight.

WOMAN BURNED AS GAS HEATER FIRES CLOTHING

Gloucester, Dec. 18.—Mrs. John Mortimer, a roomer at the home of Mrs. Mary Locke, No. 52 Prospect street, was probably fatally burned today when her clothing became ignited from a gas heater.

Failing to extinguished the flames, Mrs. Mortimer ran to the street and collapsed unconscious. Two men on a truck swathed the woman in blankets, but out the fire and took her to the Addison Gilbert Hospital, where her name was placed on the danger list. She was badly burned from the waist up.

In the excitement, 11-year-old Walter Heath was struck by an automobile, but escaped serious injury.

LEGION SENDS DISABLED VETS CHRISTMAS BOXES

The last of 22,000 Christmas boxes for all disabled veterans in Massachusetts hospitals, as well as Massachusetts men in hospitals outside the State, were sent out today by the State Department of the American Legion. The work was under the direction of Richard Paul, first vice-commander; Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards and Miss Mary Whitaker of the auxiliary.

Each box contained calendar, writing paper, safety razor, shaving cream, soap, talcum powder, jar of honey, box of chocolates, playing cards, cigarettes, pocket comb and tooth brush holder.

ASK MAYOR DEVER, 65, TO RUN AGAIN IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Mayor William E. Dever has been requested by a group of prominent business and professional men, including many Republicans, to become a candidate for re-election. The delegation, headed by Julius Rosenwald, philanthropist, was told by the mayor that he would take the subject under advisement, although he was not inclined to become a candidate. He said he had reached the age of 65 and that to conduct an other campaign would be a strenuous task.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Gifts of Roses and Blue Flowers Feature Coming-Out Party of Miss Betty Moulton at Hotel Somerset

IT COULDN'T HAVE BEEN ENTIRELY THE "LONG ARM of coincidence" that brought to Miss Betty Moulton for her coming out ball such a wealth of rose and blue floral tribute. Coincidence certainly would account for some few of the boxes and baskets, but when box after box and basket after basket disgorged a fragrant burden of rose or blue tinted blossoms it became quite evident that everyone knew it was to be a rose and blue ball and gave their florists orders accordingly.

WITH A LIGHTNESS AND DELICACY decidedly French and thoroughly satisfying to the eye, this rose and blue decorative motif was applied to the rose ballroom of the Hotel Somerset by means of ping begonias, larkspur, blue as the summer sky, and great wreaths tied with blue streamers. And for the receiving line a Watteau-like garden effect was achieved with dim-toned old tapestries, flower-filled urns and marble settles, each playing a part.

MISS MOULTON WORE WHITE AND SILVER, an adorable frock essentially debutante-ish, and suited perfectly to a girl with wide blue eyes and golden hair. A bright sheath of silver bodice topped an airy, frilly, tulle skirt, from which peeped out smart little shoes with the brightest of buckles. Mrs. John Moulton, the debutante's mother, wore a costume formally fashioned en traine, of deep black velvet with silver tracerles.

ACCORDING TO DEBUTANTE LIGHTS, Miss Betty Moulton is making a huge success of her first season. And by this I mean, to be sure, that she has been taken into the magic circle defined by membership in Boston's two smart organizations, the Vincent Club and the Junior League. Membership in these two places her in the "Who's Who" of young feminine Boston and is the ultimate goal of every bud.

THE MOULTONS HAVE A PLEASANT COUNTRY PLACE, called Brookfield, down in the heart of the Myopia region, and that means that Miss Betty spends much of her year moving through the pleasant and lively diversions of that smart hunting set. So, naturally, there was a distinct Myopia flavor to the under lie: and to the feminine guest list for the ushers' dinner, which Mr. and Mrs. Moulton gave at their Beacon street place.

THOMAS E. P. RICE WAS HEAD USHER, and Thomas E. Proctor, 3d, and James P. Mandell were in the assisting squad. Of the girls, these were Miss Betty Barrell, Miss Helen Rust, Miss Frances Goodwin and Miss Esther Proctor; also Mrs. Tom Proctor and Mrs. T. E. Proctor Rice. Messrs. "Freddy" Ayer and William Stuart Forbes, Nell Rice, Robert Eliot Goodwin Dexter Hunneman and Hiram T. Folsom were a sextet of older men, all hailing from Hamilton and thereabouts, who aided the young squad in its usher duties.

GREEN, IN ALL ITS TINTS AND TONES and manifestations, from sea foam to deep almond, was high favorite with the feminine contingent of the Supper Dance set for gowns and ornaments and costume accessories of one sort and another. Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman set off her white taffeta with an enormous sheaf of tulle that seemed to float on her shoulder. Mrs. Harris Livermore, one of the sleek, boyishly shingled hair, wore dangling jade earrings that exactly matched the tint of her lovely shawl, at the first of the Supper Dances at the Copley-Plaza.

MISS RUTH THAYER WAS A SYMPHONY IN GREEN, from smart green shoes to the deep shining green leaves of the gardenias clustered at her shoulder. Young Mrs. "Dick" Saltonstall, who is, I think, one of the smartest of our young matrons, wore the newest of modes, the bolero, done in jade green velvet with square steel beads. Mrs. Amor Hollingsworth's frock was light green, with a swirl of fringe for its hem. She and Mrs. Rockhill Brevoort Potts and Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames, arriving together, made a distinguished trio.

MRS. B. H. BRISTOW DRAPER'S SMART LITTLE SATIN SHOES had brilliants set into their heels, and her frock, of French elegance and simplicity, was a chiffon designed in sequins. She was a la gamine, and her straightline pale rose frock. Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr., wore a bright red-beaded frock. Her sisters, Mrs. "Freddy" Buske and Miss Louise Feasenden, in green frocks all a-glean with spangles, and made exactly alike, creat-l a mild confusion of identities. Both are blondes and could easily pass for twins.

MRS. WESTMORE WILLCOX WORE SOME HANDSOME AMBER EARRINGS that were as pretty as could be with her golden hair. Her gown was a golden pattern on silver lace. Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church had Mrs. John Geary in her party. Mrs. Church of course had lovely clothes. Last evening she wore a gown of swinging bead fringes over silver, and looked positively stunning.

MISS ISABELLA MUMFORD'S lovely antique gold earrings matched her yellow gown, and one just exactly suited the other. Mrs. Theodore Frothingham always has adorable evening gowns, usually of the light basque-bouffaut skirt model, and rarely have I seen her in a more charming little expression of this her favorite mode. It was a tint between blue and green, taking something from each, and was shot through with gilt threads.

THIS AFTERNOON SOCIETY, in its senior and junior branches, takes tea at the Somerset in honor of Miss Lois Tucker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Tucker of Brookline. The tea is Miss Tucker's formal debut, and so far as the debbies go, winds up a week that has been strenuous indeed.

MISS SUSANNE APSEY AND VERNON COOKE, JR., said their marriage lines before the altar of Appleton Chapel made bright with velvety red poinsettias and walked down an aisle flanked with the same bright crimson blossoms. The poinsettias and evergreens made an effect entirely Christmasy and most unusual, and really a perfect floral setting for the maid who becomes a bride in late December.

THIS SETTING OF CRIMSON AND GREEN threw into high relief the bride and her attendants with their gowns of white and silver and their bouquets of all white flowers. There were six in attendance on the bride, Miss Edith Gonzales of Texas, Miss Beverly Wilson of Richmond, Va., Miss Florence Love and Miss Lucile Close of Cambridge, Miss Frances Taylor and Miss Ruth Taylor of Haverhill.

TELL HARVARD OF MOON

Observers tonight of the appulse, or shadowing of the moon, the first to occur in 400 years, are requested to report their observations to the Harvard College Observatory.

The rare phenomenon, much rarer than eclipses, will take place when the moon enters the penumbra of the earth, the penumbra being the light shadow that borders the umbra, or cone of the shadow which the earth casts out into space.

Harvard wants especially to know the exact time noted for the beginning and end of the appulse, and observers should send their data to the observatory "in care of Luna Eclipse."

The appulse will begin at approximately 11:30 o'clock. The shadow will grow gradually heavier until about 1:20 a. m. Sunday, when the moon will be of darkish hue, shading to a ruddy glow. It will end at about 3:30 a. m.

Garfield After Lecturers

New York, Dec. 18 (A.P.).—Dr. Harry Garfield, president of Williams College and chairman of the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass., sailed today for London to get lecturers for next Summer's institute.

SLAYER HIDES BEHIND OATH OF PRIESTS

Chicago, Dec. 18 (I.N.S.).—The Rev. L. J. Sweeney cannot give police any aid in capturing the desperate who slew Walter Schmith, aged six, because the man's story of the brutal crime was told in the confessional, it was declared at the office of Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago.

The oath of a Catholic priest prevents him from disclosing in any manner the secrets of the confessional and even if called upon to identify the murderer, he would be forced to remain silent.

Handicapped by this veil of secrecy, police and hundreds of aroused residents of the fashionable North Shore were combing the district today for a former hostler at the riding academy where the lad was found dying.

The hostler, discharged on complaint of a 9-year-old girl, was suspected because the slayer, who led the Rev. Sweeney and the Rev. C. J. McCarthy to the loft, had keys to the building and appeared to be familiar with the surroundings.

Police were ordered to arrest on sight Harold Croarkin, 26, son of the wealthy head of Peter Croarkin & Sons Flour Company.

Croarkin was seen playing with small boys near the riding academy, where little Walter was found in a dying condition, according to the police.

A conference got under way today between Father Sweeney and Monsignor Bernard Shell over the crime, but slight hope was held that police would be given any information beyond the bare details already at hand.

WAR CLOUDS IN LITHUANIA

London, Dec. 18.—The Lithuanian government has capitulated to the leaders of the Fascist coup d'etat, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Kovno.

The Slezevicius government, arrested in the coup, has resigned and a new ministry has been formed with Professor Waldemar as Premier.

War clouds loom as a result of the revolt.

The Lithuanian insurgents plan to acquire Vilna from the Poles, it is asserted.

Troops loyal to the old Slezevicius Cabinet have entrenched themselves upon Green Hill, part of the fortress of Kovna, and threaten to bombard the city.

Lithuanian workers, especially Communists, are report i to be organizing for an attempted counter coup.

Ex-Chancellor Luther May Succeed Marx

Berlin, Dec. 18.—President Von Hindenburg today received successively the chairmen of the People's Party, the Socialists, the Centrists and the German Nationalists in reference to formation of a new Cabinet to succeed that of Chancellor Marx.

Former Chancellor Hans Luther, who is now returning from a trip to Central and South America, is mentioned most frequently by the Rightists as the successor to Dr. Marx.

RICH MAN WEDS HOUSEKEEPER

Attended by their respective son and daughter, Ernest Charles Drouet, wealthy Somerville real estate man and Mrs. Lillian Murray, his housekeeper, were married at the Drouet home today by Rev. John H Hayes of Allston.

The groom gave his age on marriage intentions as seventy-four, the bride as fifty-two. This is Drouet's third marriage and his new bride's second venture. The bride was attended by her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, of Braintree. The best man was E. Charles Drouet, Jr., son of the groom.

After the ceremony the couple held a reception and left on a honeymoon trip. Drouet is well known in Somerville. He is said to be one of the wealthiest men in the city.

Will Allow Smith College Girls to Smoke on Campus

Northampton, Dec. 18 (A. P.).—Smith College has substituted two general smoking rules in place of the former regulations allowing the students to smoke in the college dormitories.

This action was taken, it was announced today by a vote of the student body in recognition of the fire risk involved in smoking in dormitories.

Students will be allowed to smoke along the path around Paradise Pond, a body of water adjoining the campus, and in the tea rooms in Northampton by these new regulations.

The plan will be effective immediately after the Christmas recess which ends Jan. 7.

COLD GARAGE HARMS MOTOR

It is a fact that a cold garage is actually greater in cost to a car owner than a heated garage. Carbon fouled motors, wasted gasoline, scored cylinders and bearings, ruined batteries, damaged fittings, rusted parts and rotted wires are all probable occurrences in a cold garage.

An outstanding garage heater which has been installed in many garages in Greater Boston during the past few years and which has proven satisfactory, is the George A. Long patented gas heating system.

This heater is fully equipped with baffles, spark plug, push button, all connected with the most improved terminal connections. It is of cast bronze and will last a lifetime.

This garage heater fills the auto owner's need in a practical way. With it great economies are possible in elimination of wasted heat.

The Long Heater is fully approved and licensed by the State fire marshall without restriction.

George A. Long also manufactures a heater for general heating, and homes or apartments which give the tenant full control of his heat and relieves the landlord of all care and anxiety, which is a problem which must be considered under present heating laws.

This is an automatic hot water storage system which heats 30 gallons of water to 165 degrees, using a maximum of 15 feet of gas per hour. When this temperature is reached the gas is automatically reduced to 2½ feet per hour. When tap is opened the gas flow is increased to, maintain the necessary temperature. This system is giving satisfaction in many types of buildings, ranging from homes to apartment houses and office buildings.

ELECTRO ICER HAS MANY USES

Electric refrigeration is now recognized as the only clean, sanitary, modern method of keeping foods really fresh.

Always at the command of the housewife, the use of an electric refrigerator makes it possible to serve the most delectable food and refreshing drinks at very small expense and minimum preparation.

Since the electric refrigerator brings such assistance, it is of the greatest importance that deep consideration be given to the type of Electro Icer that is placed in the home, hotel or any other place where it supplants the old method of preserving and keeping food.

The mechanism of an electric refrigerator is a potent factor; in fact it is the most important part of the Icer, for perfect mechanism means greater perfection in the product that will give satisfaction to the owner.

The Champion Electro Icer, built by the Champion Electric Company of St. Louis, Mo., a company nationally known, is planned to provide electric refrigeration that can be depended upon to operate with a minimum of attention or service. It offers the utmost in quality, durability and value.

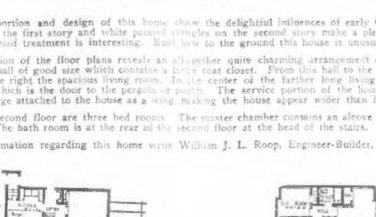
Not only does the Champion Electro Icer quality as to durability, but it also fills every kind of need for electric refrigeration, for there is a size and type to fit all requirements.

The Champion Electro Icer Junior is for apartments and small homes. It is available in two sizes. For bigger needs, the Champion Electro Icer Senior, with several compartments, provides ample space for those wishing to preserve food in greater quantities.

Another interesting feature about the Champion Electro Icer is that it can be installed outside of an old type of refrigerator as a detached unit.

A Substantial Dutch Colonial House

From the Office of William J. L. Roop, Engineer-Builder



The proportion and design of this home show the delightful influences of early Colonial architecture. Brick on the first story and white painted shingles on the second story make a pleasing color combination. The roof treatment is interesting. Built low to the ground this house is unusually distinctive.

Examination of the floor plans reveals an altogether quite charming arrangement of rooms. There is an entrance hall of good size which contains a large coat closet. From this hall to the left is the dining room, and to the right the spacious living room. In the center of the farther long living room wall is a fireplace near which is the door to the pergola or porch. The service portion of the house is at the rear next to the garage attached to the house as a wing making the house appear wider than it is.

On the second floor are three bed rooms. The master chamber contains an alcove suitable as dressing quarters. The bath room is at the rear of the second floor at the head of the stairs.

For information regarding this home write William J. L. Roop, Engineer-Builder, 294 Washington St., Boston.

Ready for Christmas Shoppers

The well filled window of the Chandler and Barber Company, 124 Summer street, has been stocked with a lavish hand to please Christmas shoppers.

DOLL HOUSE IS UNIQUE GIFT

A very practical and instructive plaything and yet one which would fill any child with delight is finding great favor with Christmas gift lovers this year.

This is a Doll House made by a contractor of long standing which is an exact replica of a real home, a house that will give a child unending enjoyment and at the same time instruct in how a home is laid out and used.

A children's land of make believe is a very real place for them, their dolls are real babies, their dishes and sets permit them to serve real meals and what a real doll house their play land becomes as real as home.

The idea of genuine little houses for children was conceived and completed by Mac Doughlin of 77 West Concord Street, Boston, whose regular work is building, contracting and refinishing. For many years this company has built homes of every type.

These houses are just a little larger than the usual doll houses that are sold for children, but the entire construction and the interior finishing is in a way that puts them far ahead as a Christmas children's joy builder.

Besides his intown jobbing shop on West Concord Street, where his Doll Houses are manufactured, Mac Dougall also maintains a large woodworking mill on River Street, Mattapan. This mill is in reality Mr. MacDougall's main office, and it is there that he manufactures various kinds of interior finish, store fronts, and all kinds of cabinet work.

USEFUL GIFTS ARE PLEASING

It is the unusual gift that gives the greatest pleasure, things that people want, appreciate and enjoy but which gift buyers seldom think about because they are out of the beaten path of holiday suggestions.

Buying Christmas gifts from a hardware store is not a new idea. It has led to a successful and practical vogue, and each year finds it growing.

The store of Chandler & Barber Company at No. 124 Summer street, Boston, offers an excellent illustration of the prominence hardware stores have taken in the gift field.

During the past few Christmas seasons they have done an increasingly large business in gifts for women in kitchen scales, coffee percolators, egg beaters, waffle irons, and goods of similar nature. For men they have sold a great many radio gifts, some sets, other loud speakers, battery chargers, stronger batteries, new ear phones, with no diminution of their sales of shaving sets, razors, pocket knives, flash lights, fountain pens, etc. Men are really busy and few appreciate any gift greater than tools and hardware generally.

Christmas gifts for the children are filled by such well-appreciated things as roller skates, bank safes, snowshoe sleds, ice skates, jackknives, bicycles, and equipment for football, baseball, basketball, hockey and polo. Something for an automobile means something which everyone who rides will enjoy. It will be hard to think of better gifts for a car owner than a spotlight, flower vase, a new horn, set of wrenches, tire chains, jacks, clocks, number plate holders, road guides, trouble lamps, luggage carrier, tire gauge, windshield wiper or motor meter.

For younger children a store like Chandler & Barber's carries many suggestions, such as kiddie cars, blackboards, games, mechanical toys, tricycles, scooters, trains, carts, sleds, knives, watches and other things to make the young folks happy for a long time after Christmas.

Nowadays folks recognize the hardware store as the logical place to buy electric appliances and there may be found in this store an endless variety.

GIVES ADVICE ON DECORATION

Instances of Big Bosses High-Hatted By Employes

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—One of the Du Ponts, principal owners of General Motors, called at the corporation's towering headquarters in New York to see a minor official. He was told to sit down in the waiting room with a score of more other visitors. After being left there to cool his heels for quite a while, he was ushered in.

His mission, as I get the story, was to make a suggestion. The minor official wasn't quite sure Wouldn't it would dare to look into the matter for him? However, would the caller leave his name and address?

On being told, he gulped. When he started to apologize for having kept Mr. Du Pont waiting so long, the latter told him it was all right, that it was quite agreeable to him to stay in the waiting room until his turn came.

B. C. Forbes

This attitude is somewhat different from that of some nabobs.

WHICH RECALLS the experience of a young man who had recently joined the latter's staff of Frank A. Vanderlip, then president of the National City Bank.

This young man noted for his courtesy and cordiality. A several looking gentleman with "dress" his office to call on the president. sanction and the young man greeted him with a cheery "Good morning." All he got in return was a glare. On several other mornings the same gentleman passed by and received the affable young man extended his hearty "Good morning." Never once did he get a reply.

The next time the visitor appeared the young man looked up but went on with his business without greeting. The dignified visitor paused after he crossed the office, stood hesitatingly an instant, turned his head and said, "Good morning."

"Ah, ha! I knew I would get you yet," crowed the young man.

He heard a roar of laughter come from the President's office a minute later, and then learned that the stranger was James Stillman, the multibillionaire and super-boss of the bank.

ALTHOUGH the Pennsylvania Railroad has long been the largest system in the world, and regularly paid dividends for two generations, it doesn't pay its officers one cent for attending board meetings—almost every board in the country does. Our directors either a tendollar or a twenty-dollar gold piece at each meeting, most of which coins are handed over to the wives.

While having lunch the other day with a number of Philadelphia business men, one of the party, Arthur W. Thompson, president of the United Gas Improvement Company, arrived late and explained that he had been delayed by a meeting of the Pennsylvania Board of which he is a member.

This reminded Samuel I. Bodine, chairman of the U. G. I., of an incident that occurred during the regime of Colonel Scott as president of the Pennsy. One of the directors complained that he had not been tipped off about a certain dividend action and that he was turned to advantage he added something to the effect that Colonel Scott was such a piker that he wouldn't even pay his directors a fee for attending meetings.

Colonel Scott's come-back was:

"The executives of the road . . . are getting rich on the salaries the directors strictly honest or the whole road will go to the devil."

That was all the satisfaction the director got.

WHO says that bankers are wholly without sentiment? On occasions they are—usually when a loan is wanted. On other occasions they're human.

This has been demonstrated afresh in the untimely death of Colonel William H. Porter, the J. P. Morgan partner who died tragically sudden-ly. Hby the way, it is becoming the habit that Morgan partners die suddenly.)

Mr. Porter started life as a boy in the Fifth Avenue Bank of New York and later became a director for many years. Following the death the bank's board of directors passed a resolution, which was published as an advertisement in the daily newspaper, in course of which they recorded:

"He allowed no anniversary of the day that he entered this bank's employ to pass without visiting it and recalling the significance of the day to his old friends in the staff here. Admiral, our faithful, loyal friend.

"Thou livest in our hearts, sir, for all men know
This earth has borne no simpler, nobler man."

It so happens that in the case of Mr. Porter, such a tribute was richly deserved. There was about him nothing of the autocratic haughtiness the popular imagination associates with powerful Wall street bankers.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Here's a Road to Happiness.

As Blanche Ring remarks during a brisk argument in "Cradle Snatchers" at the Hollis: "The best couple I ever knew was that of a night watchman husband whose wife was a cook. They haven't met for 20 years and they just dote on each other."

CHRISTMAS WEEK AT DOWN TOWN HOUSES YIELDS ONLY ONE NEW DRAMATIC OFFERING

UNCLE DAVE gives grand advice to the estranged sweethearts in "Tommy" at the park. Sidney Toler and Peg Entwistle are two of the charming folks in this delicious play.

FAIR AND WARMER than the L Street Brownies—apparently—is Catheryn Gallimore in "A Night in Paris," coming to the Majestic Christmas night.

PAULINE LORD, glittering star of the new drama at the Plymouth Monday, "Daisies Won't Tell"—not a mystery drama, but we're not supposed to tell, either.

ON HER TOES, ready for the Christmas week celebration at B. F. Keith's is Ledova, who will lead the whirling dance with speed and spectacle.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS and flaming youth rings in a few false alarms in the amorous adventures of "Cradle Snatchers" at the Hollis. Heading from sport-shirt to sport-shirt, the three brave lads are Eric Evans, Elliot Roth and Joseph McCallion.

ART NOT INTERESTED IN PUNY WAR DEBTS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

WHILE diplomats and editors continue to hurl hard words on the general topic of war debts and other international distractions, it may be inferred from a letter penned by Cecile Sorel that in the exchange of arts between France and America every moment is crowded with peace and good will. The distinguished madame from Paris will carry her talents and those of the Comedie Francaise group of players into the Boston Opera House in another week. Incidentally, however, and before the rise of the curtain, she will bend a knee in prayer and place a wreath upon the Lafayette medallion in Boston Common. Madame Sorel begs the attendance of the whole town at this gesture of devotion.

"IT is needless for me to assure you," she writes, "of the deep appreciation of my countrymen for all the courtesies and honors France has received in the name and memory of Lafayette. I soon will visit your wonderful city as the Countess de Segur, bearing the name of a family directly descendant from the great soldier, and in behalf of the theatrical profession of France, which, as Societaire de la Comedie Francaise, I have the honor to represent, I shall consider it a great privilege to place a wreath, with humble prayer and salutation, at this monument (Lafayette's) at the noon hour on Monday, December 27th." With this simple ceremony completed we may feel assured that the rival arts of France and America will embrace and impale the Gallic kiss upon each cheek. In the meantime, the abode of your good old Uncle Shylock will continue as a fair pasture for soaring talents.

IT would appear from the current news bulletin issued by the Shubert general office that nights in Europe are more profitable than the days. We are told, for example, that the success of "A Night in Paris," with its ripened Continental atmosphere, has induced the prolific Shubert boys to turn to another Latin nation for material with which to build an international revue. This time the haughty Castilian draws the attention of lyricist, booster, composer and producer. Preparations are already under way for "A Night in Spain," which, on no less an authority than the artist, Watson Barratt, will be gorgeously crowded with genuine Spanish atmosphere and color. The settings also, we are told, will present something new and intriguing. Mr. Barratt made the sketches himself.

FOLLOWING the example of Channing Pollock, who, according to common measure, is as much, if not more, of a lecturer than a playwright, Howard Lindsay, old Boston Latin boy and author of "Tommy," at the Park, regularly takes to the speaking platform in the interest of art in general and his work in particular. Mr. Lindsay, since the arrival of "Tommy" in these regions, has set a pace in personal appearances at clubs and other organizations that threatens to outdistance, in time consumed and words uttered, anything the keen-witted Mr. Pollock has done. Mr. Lindsay is a propagandist on a modest and, we imagine, a very useful plan, for his lectures chiefly concern the desirability of deeper interest in clean plays.

BOUNDING BEATRICE LANDS HER MAN

"EXIT SMILING" is the humorous title of this hilarious movie—to be seen next week at Loew's State, Harry Myers and Beatrice Lillie are the happy interpreters.

Ziegfeld Belle

ETHLIND TERRY, to be seen with "Rio Rita," new Ziegfeld revue to take over the Colonial, Monday, December 27th.

STAGE LIFE HER HAVEN

"The stage is a haven of security. There are more pitfalls for a girl out in the business world." Those are the grave sentiments of Jacqueline Brown, comely show girl with the new revue, "A Night In Paris," which opens Christmas night at the Majestic.

Concerning the comic platitude of Marie Dressler, or somebody, that "Heaven will protect the poor working girl," Miss Brown claims just as much celestial supervision for her sisters of the glittering stage.

"I've worked on the nine-to-five shift in the offices of the busy marts of trade," she assures you, "and toiled with the cost-sheets and trial balances. But I'd rather be in the green room than in the counting rooms any day, and here's why:

"Life in 'show-business' is just what you want it to be. While there is a certain amount of so-called 'freedom' to it there are far more restrictions, too. But there is more real freedom for any stenographer after 5 o'clock any evening than most show girls would know what to do with. Our time is, as a rule, pretty well taken up and accounted for between the routine of long daily rehearsals and the steady grind of eight performances a week. Do you know any business girl whose daily life is so supervised as this?"

And of course you don't—off hand—and that's that.

Franklin Park Taken Over By Large Theatre Chain

The New England Theatres Operating Company, controlling more than a dozen of the largest picture houses in the suburban districts, have added another theatre to their rapidly growing list. As an imposing neighbor to their new Morton Theatre, located on the corner of Blue Hill avenue and Morton streets, they have lately acquired the Franklin Park, one of the very first large suburban theatres to present a combined vaudeville and picture show with downtown attractions.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

PLYMOUTH—"Daisies Won't Tell," a play by Owen Winters and Leonard Cline. A story of life in a small Ohio town. Pauline Lord is presented as its heroine and star, with George Baxter taking the principal masculine role. Also in the cast are Howard Lang, Herbert Yost, Dorothy Day and Douglas Montgomery. Staged by Edgar Selwyn. Produced by Edgar Selwyn and Sam H. Harris.

MAJESTIC—(Opening Christmas night) "A Night in Paris," a musical revue. Book by Harold Atteridge; lyrics by Clifford Grey and McElbert Moore; music by J. Fred Coots and Maurie Rubens. In the cast are Jack Pearl, Jack Osterman, Norma Terriss, Barnett Parker, Catheryn Gallimore, Lucille Arnold, Paul Davis, Emily Woolley, Richard Lee and Harry O'Neil. Staged by J. C. Huffman. Produced by the Shuberts.

CASTLE SQUARE—"Madame X," a drama by Alexander Bisson. The story of domestic disorders, treated in the manner of the European dramatist. Has stirring heart appeal and many intense situations. Adelyn Bushnell undertakes the title role, with Jerry Bradford as the son. In the supporting cast are Jack Marvin, Josephine Fox, Peggy Shanor, Betty Utmore and Hamilton Christy. Staged by George Farren.

* * *

REPERTORY—(Starting Thursday) "A Kiss for Cinderella," a fantastic comedy by Sir James M. Barrie. First acted in America with Maude Adams as its principal player. In the Repertory cast are Margaret Parsons as Cinderella; Guy Phillips, William Kershaw, Agnes Elliot Scott, Ralph Roberts and Ruth Taylor. Staged by Henry Jewett.

Clive and Players to Give Xmas Show At Prison

Following his annual custom, E. E. Clive and his Copley Theatre players will give a special Christmas performance at Charlestown State Prison for the entertainment of the inmates.

This year's offering will be "Toys Of Money", the current attraction at the Copley. The performance will take place a week from next Sunday.

Stage Stars Will Glitter At Mechanics' Ball

Stars from the leading theatres in Boston will present an entertainment on the night of January 20 when the Theatrical Stage Employes will hold their sixth annual ball in Mechanics Building.

Every theatre in Boston has offered to contribute some of their best features to the entertainment, which is always one of the high lights of the ball.

COMEDY'S TRUMP CARD IN 'QUEEN HIGH'

JOHN E. HAZZARD, as caricatured by Charlie Schmidt, in the merry musical farce at the Wilbur. In the show, John is the "Hazardous" poker-player, who wins a big pot on a pair of sixes.

French Star

CECILE SOREL, star of the Comedie Francaise, coming the Monday after Christmas at the Boston Opera House.

ROYAL PROPS FOR CECILE

When that festive monarch, Louis XV., gave Madame DuBarry an ermine coverlet to warm her slumbers he little thought that some day it would be listed as stage property at the Boston Opera House.

Not only the comforter, made of a thousand royal skins, but the bed it and DuBarry graced will be among the stage furniture used by Cecile Sorel, the great French actress, who will appear here with her own company from the Comedie Francaise, the national theatre of France, during the week of December 27. The repertoire is:

Monday evening, "Maitresse de Roi"; Tuesday evening, "Le Misanthrope"; Wednesday matinee, and night, "La Dame aux Camelias"; Thursday evening, "L'Aventuriere"; Friday evening, "Maitresse de Roi"; Saturday matinee, "Maitresse de Roi"; Saturday evening, "La Dame aux Camelias."

Karl Dane Winner in New Kind of Beauty Show

There is a certain beauty about "homely" men, not to be denied Lincoln, for instance, could not be described as exactly "handsome," yet there are certain of the crude photographs extant that are truly beautiful. So it is with Karl Dane, whose portrait of Slim in "The Big Parade" at the Majestic has gained him wide fame and a host of friends.

Dane is tall, angular and distinctly unhandsome, as you see him in this character, but the humorous and kindly nature of Slim so registers with audiences that there is ample reason for the honest tears shed at every performance during his pathetic death scene.

THOMAS RECITAL

Recitals of interest that are scheduled in the near future at Symphony Hall include that of John Charles Thomas, the popular baritone, on Sunday afternoon, January 3, and that of Pablo Casals, peer of cellists, on Sunday afternoon, January 9.

DRAMA WITHIN A DRAMA IN NEW FILM

Lois Moran was waiting on table at the Paramount Long Island studio as part of the setting for Herbert Brenon's "God Gave Me Twenty Cents," new film at the Metropolitan. Seated around were hundreds of extras and those eternally hopeful courters of fame.

Lois Moran

Among them, the kindly face of an old lady gazed wistfully at her. Lois began talking to her. And out of that little chat came a firmed conviction that life has a strange way of juggling its human entities.

[illegible] the old lady was a character actress. She played [illegible] as "Shore Acres," with Fannie Davenport in "Pique" and with Frank Mayo in "Davy Crockett." The old lady told of her career—"That was a good many years ago, my dear," she concluded with a faint smile. "I used to be a great character actress, but now—well I just act myself and they call me a character. Funny, isn't it?"

The man at her left, dressed in a sailor's costume, followed her narrative. His tanned features, gnarled rough hands and tattooed arms suggested a hardier livelihood than that of movies. He was born aboard ship in Melbourne, Australia. Storm-toughened, he left the sea to become a fifth-rate pugilist.

"Bummin' around gave me my nose," he said with a grin," and my mug gives me the job. I work pretty steady but I gotta keep going. I gotta family to support."

IRISH FILM SHOWN

The historical photoplay, 'Irish Destiny," will have its last downtown showing today at Tremont Temple. By special invitation, representatives of all the local Irish societies will be in attendance

PERCENTAGES FOR MOVIES ACTING

For those who like their facts in figures, Doris Kenyon, featured player in "Ladies at Play," now film at the Olympia, lists the following requisites for screen success:

Acting ability, 30 per cent.

Beauty, 15 per cent.

Personality, 20 per cent.

Trying hard to succeed, 25 per cent.

Luck, 10 per cent.

"Of course, each actress differs from another," Miss Kenyon explains. "I took fifty representative women with whose careers I was familiar, and struck the average given above. Therefore it seems to me that these figures should be approximately correct.

Conditions haven't changed radically since the earlier days of motion pictures, except that today fewer actresses are taken from the speaking stage and more are developed within screen ranks."

Doris Kenyon

Most Popular Office Boy Seen In Marion's Latest

Turner Savage, ten-year-old film actor, will soon become the best known office boy in the world. Young Savage has been cast in the role of "Willie," the office boy, in Russ Westover's famous comic strip, the basis of Marion Davies' newest starring vehicle, "Tillie, the Toiler," now being produced.

Turner played with Miss Davies during the filming of her last production, "The Red Mill," and as well did he interpret his role that the star suggested him for the important part of "Willie" in her new picture.

GOOD WAY TO GET 'EM UP BEFORE NOON

BETTER THAN BIG BEN is Shirley Mason as an eye-opener for Earle Metcalf in the film with the intriguing title, "Sin Cargo," at the Modern and Beacon.

In Full Pace With the Modes.

When Cecile Sorel, the distinguished star of the Comedie Francaise, presents "Camille" at the Boston Opera House during her week of tenancy, playgoers will be treated to an innovation, for the long suffering heroine will be gowned in the full fashion of 1926.

STAGE AND SCREEN

"Big Parade" Takes on Paris.

Having proved itself the best of all World War films, "The Big Parade" is now on the high road to prosperity in France. The first presentation of the film in Paris a few days ago drew cabinet ministers for spectators and was generously praised by the critics.

LAUGHS FOR SOME, TEARS FOR OTHERS, IN NEW FILMS AT THE FIRST RUN HOUSES

LITTLE MISS INNOCENCE—All she knows is what she reads in the papers—apparently, but it is Leatrice Joy looking intentionally simple in "The Clinging Vine" (Boston). The blase blazer gent is not Will Rogers—Will Henderson.

THE NEXT DANCE will be a waltz. Antonio Moreno has it with Greta Garbo in "The Temptress (Orpheum), but they are going to "drink" this one out so that the wailing fiddles will sound just a wail more romantic.

"JAILED, BUT NOT JILTED" might be the title of this heart-wringer. Or it might be the prison scene from the opery, "The Ill Trobadour." But no, it is "God Gave Me Twenty Cents," with Lya de Putti and Jack Mulhall at the Metropolitan.

THE SIMPLE SISTERS, simpering sweetly, are Ethel Wales and Louise Fazenda in a scene of reckless gayet y in "Ladies at Play" at the Washington Street Olympia. Louise is probably cautioning Ethel to "watch out for that city feller, he looks deceivin'."

"HOME BODY" IN VAMPIRE CHARACTER

"The girl who never goes places" is the girl chosen to play one of the most sensational vampire roles of modern literature.

She never leaves home save to go to the studio, pen back her mail and then a theatre to the evening. The lights of Hollywood are not for her. Still Greta Garbo was chosen for the title role in "The Temptress," which comes to Loew's Orpheum on Monday.

Greta Garbo

The famous Swedish star, brought to America by Louis B. Mayer following her triumphs in Europe, plays a glittering wrecker of homes and hearts.

Off the screen, however, she is a home body. She hurries out of her brilliant costumes and goes to her home on the Santa Monica beach after working hours and rarely emerges except to attend one of the big Los Angeles movie shows where she can watch the work of other stars on the screen.

"People think I am off-side because I don't go to the places where crowds are. I love crowds—that is to watch them from a distance—but I just never mingle—and that's that."

CONROY AT ST. JAMES

John Conroy, well known local athlete and physical culture expert will appear as the feature of the vaudeville bill next week at the Keith-Albee St. James. His act is an exhibition of dancing, drills, rope and bar work. Appearing with him are his Physical Culture Girls who will assist him and demonstrate the Conroy methods of keeping fit.

GEORGE WILL PLAY SANTA ONCE MORE

Perhaps the most popular Santa Claus in Boston is George Williams, property man at B. F. Keith's, who for 20 years has been Santa Claus every afternoon in Christmas week. He has given away toys and dolls to boys and girls for 20 years and is eagerly looking forward to doing it all over again this year.

Twenty-one years ago the late B. F. Keith wanted to do something for the boys and girls who came to the theatre so he started a Christmas tree in the Red Room. Each youngster received a present. Then he spoke to George Williams and they both planned a Christmas tree on the stage.

CHANGES IN VAUDEVILLE

B. F. KEITH'S—Christmas Week bill, with Frank Fay presiding, and presenting an act of his own, "And Then What?" with Johnny Dyer and Diana Lee; Ledova, dancene, assited by Leon Varkna, Joseph Napolitano and the Gypsy Quintette; Ardine and Tyrell in the playlet, "At the End of the Line"; Dave Seed and Ralph Austin in the sketch, "Things And Stuff"; Boyle and Della in the skit, "How's That?"; Adams and Wright in songs, and others.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—Ruth Roye, "comedienne of syncopation," in topical songs; Anita Bancroft and John Hill, New England Radio winners; "Cafe Madrid," a musical revue; George Williams and Jean Godfrey in the skit, "I Love Women"; The King Brothers in "Act Different," and others. The feature photoplay is the picturization of Dumas' Dancer's "The Temptress," with Greta Garbo co-featured with Antonio Moreno.

A Jazz drama. In the cast are Shirley Mason and Robert Frazer. Louis J. Gasnier directed. A Tiffany picture.

FENWAY—(Starting today) Corinne Griffith and Tom Moore in "Syncopating Sue," and Jane Novak and Huntley Gordon in "Lost at Sea."

Starting Wednesday, Shirley Mason and Cullen Landis in "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," and Anna Q. Nilsson and Lewis Stone in "Midnight Lovers."

Modern "Granny" Glorified In New Boston Film

When a woman became a grandmother a few years ago, she was gently but firmly moved into an atmosphere of lavender and old lace, given a black parasol, and helped over curbstones by gallant gentlemen. But today—

"The Clinging Vine," Leatrice Joy's new star vehicle now showing at the Boston Theatre, presents the development of the "old granny" of a generation ago into the modern, capable, attractive, stylish stout" of today. Due to the young ideas of a modern grandmother, Leatrice Joy's characterization in "The Clinging Vine" changes from an unappealing business "frump" into a super feminine "clinging vine" and the situations that result are amusing in the extreme.

Fair Filmster Unusually Gifted In the Arts

Myrna Loy, one of the amorous companions of John Barrymore in the film-spectacle, "Don Juan," at the Colonial, has titian hair and green eyes. The daughter of a concert pianist, she was taught music at an early age, and at sixteen was acclaimed an accomplished musician, but she preferred dancing as a career.

Trained by Ruth St. Denis, she became one of the popular dancers on the Pacific Coast and was engaged to lead the prologue given with the showing of "The Thief of Bagdad" at the Egyptian Theatre, Hollywood. Her unusual beauty attracted moving picture producers and many contracts were offered to feature her in the films. She accepted the contract submitted by Warner Bros. and has appeared in several pictures sponsored by this company.

Baxter in New Plymouth Play

A Theatre Guild production and the Ziegfeld Follies within one year is an accomplishment of George Baxter, who will be seen opposite Pauline Lord in "Daisies Won't Tell," the new play opening Monday at the Plymouth.

Last fall George Baxter was seen with June Walker in the Theatre Guild production of Molnar's "The Glass Slipper," in which he gave a most convincing performance of an extremely conceited and disagreeable young man. The praise he earned from the critics for his portrayal of this particular type, however, did not deter him from accepting a contract to appear with Mr. Ziegfeld in the last edition of the Follies. In the revue, he appeared in a picturesque pantomine with Greta Nissen and acquitted himself equally as well as a dancer and romantic lover in this sketch as he did as a "villian" in the previous production.

The long list of Broadway plays comparatively few years he has been on the stage gives further evidence of the diversity of his talents.

COMEDY AND LADYSHIP TOGETHER

(home—Lady Peel.
On stage and screen—Beatrice illie.

This is the gamut in the life of atrice Lillie, musical comedy star the London age, who is making her een debut in ilm version of onday at oew's State. According to ss Lillie, her's the most sensible engagement the world. She ves at the height her stage fame when she married Sir Robert eel. But she didn't want her arriage to interfere with her areer, so she ade an agreement with her titled husband that would not keep her from the age or screen for the first five ars of their wedded life—and after at time expires, it is understood at Miss Lillie will give up her areer and return to domestic life.

Miss Lillie plays a "tank town" ernhardt and her comedy is the life of the entire story. Her friends often wonder how she can be the stately Lady Peel at court functions and then rush off the next day to be a slapstick comedienne. Yet that is her life as Miss Lillie is making it and she likes it—and the nobleman-husband seems to like it too.

GARAGE, NEAR BUILT, LOSES ITS PERMIT

A permit granted to Phillip H. Frank for a two-story garage annex and a 2,000-gallon tank at No. 803 Shawmut avenue by the Boston Street Commissioners last June was revoked today by Fire Marshal George C. Newell in spite of the fact that the building is practically completed.

In his decision, the marshal declared that the commitment against the permit, although residing directly opposite the location on Vernon street, had no intimation of the nature of the building until the first story was shaved.

There was no publication of the notice of the time and place of a public hearing before the Street Commissioners took place, as required by law, he said, and the statute forbidding the erection of a building nearer than 500 feet to a church was violated.

The Trinity Baptist Church, he pointed out, is on the same street and within the prohibited distance.

says to the whole world, "Come here and get well."

If you have not seen New Mexico, you are, in America, like a man in Rome who has never seen St. Peter's.

OUT HERE they take things with a seriousness that would seem comical in New York.

Editors all through this Western country are interested in the trial of Pat McDermott at Canton, Ohio. All McDermott was said to have done was to shoot Don Mellett, a Canton editor, who had been attacking the gang, a bootlegging gambling, and making himself a nuisance.

HE WAS a queer sort of a man, couldn't listen to "reason" even in the shape of real money. So, as there was nothing else to do, a bullet from the dark was sent into the back of his head and he stopped at tacking the gang.

DON MELLETT, killed physically, was not quite killed mentally. The chief of police that he had been fighting had to resign after Mellett was dead. Out here they know all about the Don Mellett case and actually take an interest in it.

Ask anybody in Boston or New York what he thinks about Don Mellett and he will ask, "Who is he?"

WE DON'T get excited easily in the East, except when we find that we have to pay more for our coal, or the street cars stop running.

NEWS OF THE ACQUITTAL in the big oil case reached this train at Newton, Kan. Emil J. Stelnheuser, of Brooklyn and New York, who manages these cross-country trips and represents Eastern sentiment, remarks:

"I am glad of it. We couldn't run the country without these big men."

THAT ISN'T how they feel here. A lady in the observation car says to a total stranger: "I wouldn't even read about it, because I knew they would be acquitted." She seems as angry as Senator Heflin from Alabama, who said, "God help the nation." He thinks we might have a revolution.

SENATOR HEFLIN doesn't know his brother Americans. There won't be any revolution while men can get $5 a day for working eight hours very gently, almost anywhere in the United States, and the roughest unskilled labor in New York in the building trades gets $9 for eight hours' work, picking up odds and ends that could be done by a trained chimpanzee.

OUT HERE women feel strongly, talk plainly. An anonymous young female, a co-ed from Colorado College, writes an essay, putting in very plain language what Madame S. Igne says: "The more I see of men the more I think of dogs."

The Colorado girl describes men as she finds them, and winds up, "Men are all fools—damn 'em." Her essay is printed in the Tiger, the college publication.

A young man's style of prosing fills her with particular disgust. We will soon need another Euripides, to write another "Bacchae."

IF THE GIRL will call on Mr. Mulcahy, editor of the New York Evening Journal, he'll give her a job, reporting.

THE BRITISH know that the way to keep your credit is to pay your debts. This week Britain paid to Uncle Sam $67,950,000 interest and $25,000,000 principal on the big war debt. To date Great Britain has paid to the United States in principal and interest $42,830,000 of money borrowed in war.

That's a considerable payment, considering the financial troubles, unemployment, coal strike and other trouble in Britain since the war.

THE BRITISH, at least, want to pay. You may say that they have taken as much out of us through the rubber monopoly as they have paid on their war debts. The answer is that they are intelligent and understand business.

THE BRITISH have still a long way to go as regards payment. We settled with them on a basis of four thousand six hundred millions as of December, 1922. They have paid so far in interest $547,830,000, and in principal $95,000,000, leaving four thousand five hundred and fifty millions of the principal still unpaid.

$75,000 FIRE ON GLOUCESTER WATERFRONT

Gloucester, Dec. 18.—A fire of undetermined origin, fanned by a biting northwest wind, today destroyed the freight shed of the Massachusetts Bay Line Corporation of Boston, partly destroyed the sail loft of the United Salt Co., and threatened the local waterfront.

Sparks were carried by the wind across the harbor, setting fire to roofs a mile away, while firemen ashore and afloat, aided by Coast Guardsmen, battled with the flames.

The $150,000 yacht Faith, Chicago owned, being refitted, was towed to safety, as well as the fishing sloop Marguerite McKenzie.

Two alarms were turned in for the blaze, which caused damage estimated at $75,000.

The blaze is believed to have started near the boiler in the freight shed, which was stocked with freight brought down on her previous day's trip by the steamer Monhegan, owned by the Massachusetts Bay Line Corporation.

In a few minutes the wooden structure was enveloped in flames, and when the firemen arrived was almost destroyed. Handicapped by zero temperature and a frozen hydrant, the local firemen experienced much difficulty in their struggle.

The aid of a fire boat was obtained and a pumping engine was sent from Rockport, five miles away, in response to a request.

Another loser from the flames was the Preston Express Company which had a quantity of Christmas gifts stored in the freight shed.

Roof fires, including one on the roof of Base No. 7 of the Coast Guard patrol, were extinguished without much damage. Firemen and coast guardsmen were kept busy by the flying sparks.

INSURANCE MAN IS STRICKEN AT MEETING

Fred T. Hunneman, 68, of Cambridge, for 34 years an official of the Boston agency of the John Hancock Insurance Company, was stricken with a shock at a meeting of 150 employes of the company at No. 150 Congress street today. He was taken to the Relief Hospital. His condition is critical.

VOTE TO AMEND ALIEN BILL TO SHUT OUT BERGDOLL

Local Boy in Vaudeville Version of Old Play

"The Old Homestead," in which Denman Thompson starred for many years, reappears next week at the Scollay Square Olympia in a condensed version. Prominent in the cast is Johnny McCarron, of Cambridge, whose career upon the stage is being watched with interest by his many friends in these regions. The central character of "Uncle Josh" is being taken by Henry Horton, formerly understudy to Denman Thompson. All the old familiar features of the show have been retained in the new version. The mule quartette, in which McCarron is second tenor, will sing the old songs and jointly furnish the music with the "Swanzey Band."

"KING BEN" TOO ILL, BUT "QUEEN MARY" IS IN COURT

Benton Harbor, Mich., Dec. 18 (I. N. S.)—"King Benjamin Purnell, head of the House of David, failed today because of ill health to go to Federal Court at Grand Rapids to appear in contempt proceedings. At cult headquarters, it was announced Purnell suffered a nervous breakdown and is unable to leave his bed. Purnell's lawyers, D. H. Dewhurst and W. J. Barnard, accompanied Purnell's wife, "Queen" Mary, to court.

LICENSING ACT MAY BE TESTED IN COURTS

The possibility that the courts will be asked to construe the new licensing act which took effect August 1 was pointed out in the annual report to Governor Fuller of the Boston Licensing Board, made public today.

"Many questions have arisen as to the application of the act to particular situations," the report stated, "and it is possible the courts will be called on to construe it, but in the meantime the great majority of those presumably or possibly affected by it have applied for a license."

When the new law went into effect, placing all cabarets and cafes where entertainment is provided under the necessity of obtaining licenses, the Boston Licensing Board promulgated a set of terms and conditions which were made a part of each license.

It was with these regulations that fault was found, particularly that requiring that booths in which refreshments were to be served should not be more than 4 feet 6 inches in height and plans showing their location and character must be submitted to the board.

Another rule gave permission to Boston police and agents of the board to inspect licensed premises, and still another barred intoxicated persons and the distribution and drinking of intoxicating liquors.

A special regulation was made for dancing, requiring reference of all dance license applications concerning which there is any question of the safety of the premises, to the building department of the city.

Also, it was stated that since July 1 the board has referred to the building department all applications for lodging house licenses for examination and report with particular reference to fire hazards.

3 NEW TYPHOID CASES IN LINCOLN AND WESTON

Typhoid cases, arising out of a carrier employed on the milk farm of R. Donaldson in Lincoln, were increased to 40 today when three new ones, one from Weston and two from Lincoln, were reported. Up to the present time no fatalities have developed.

Of the 40 cases 22 are in Lincoln, 15 in Concord and three in Weston.

Sharkey Learned Much From Maloney and Rojas Defeats

By JACK SHARKEY
As Told to Jack Conway

THIS is the sixth of a series of articles on the life of Jack Sharkey as told to Jack Conway, who is now trying to meet Gene Tunney for the world's heavyweight boxing championship next September. This series will be daily feature of the Boston Evening American.

CHAPTER VI.

I THINK that if a fighter is to suffer a crushing defeat it is better that it should occur early in his career. The real kind of a youngster laughs off a defeat, learns lessons [illegible] and [illegible] more determination than ever.

I was boxing less than six months when I was matched to meet Ramon Rojas, Cuban heavyweight. I had won Floyd Johnson [illegible] over Rojas in New York. At the time I expressed the opinion that I could defeat either Johnson or Rojas [illegible] later I upset Johnson.

I was matched [illegible] bout with Rojas. I had just got married and was in need of ready cash and gladly accepted.

The Rojas bout proved easy for me. As I look back on the affair, I [illegible] Johnson had run me a little [illegible] but in my own ability. I was busy getting settled in my home [illegible] and only trained for two days for the Rojas contest.

[illegible] my lack of condition did not seem to [illegible] In the [illegible] myself by a right hand belt to the [illegible]

Loses Decision Through Collapse

[illegible] was [illegible] as a result of not being [illegible] I was [illegible] as much as possible and [illegible] I had [illegible] the uppercuts as much as the [illegible]

In the [illegible] I felt my legs getting heavier, while my arms were [illegible] I was [illegible] to box at my usual five-round pace and was an easy [illegible] Rojas. I was groggy and hanging on at the [illegible]

I was dead with exhaustion as I rested between rounds. At the bell for the eighth chapter my seconds lifted me from my stool and shoved me from my corner. I tried to raise my arms, while my brain called upon my legs to support me. Exhaustion, however, was master of the situation. I collapsed in the center of the ring and Rojas was awarded the decision.

SQUAD OF BRITISH FIGHTING MEN

ENGLISH BOXERS INVADE AMERICAN RINGS

These sons of John Bull, taken upon their arrival in Boston, hope to clean up in their incursions against American ring talent. Left to right (top row) are Trainer Tom McIlroy, Johnny Brown, welterweight champion of the British Isles; Tom Calhoun, the manager; George McKenzie and Lieutenant Wright. Below are Alex Nesmith and Elky Clark. Clark is the holder of the Lonsdale Belt and is heralded as being better even than Tommie Wilde in his palmiest days. He will battle Fidel La Barba for the featherweight crown. The boxers arrived on the S. S. Caledonia.

CLARK CALLED BETTER THAN WILDE

By DAVID J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor.

New York, Dec. 18.—Hailed as the biggest little man known to English boxing, Jimmy Wilde not excepted, Elky Clark will arrive in this country today or early tomorrow for his world's championship bout with Fidel La Barba on January 21. Clark, if one is to believe the ex-critics would appear to have much in common with the scant of average sought who applied for a job as dwarf in a side show. The [illegible] proprietor insisted that the applicant was too tall.

"That's just the point," quoth our hero. I'll be the tallest dwarf in existence."

Clark seems to be a very tall dwarf, one of those tiny-in-stature, but-giant in ability specimens. Tad Broadbent, the so-called mighty atom who beat the best of the Americans when he was right, never knew for why he could get a stand off with Clark.

"If Wilde at his best could be matched with Clark, I'd be forced to send my money in on Clark," the British manager declared today.

If one boy is as good as all that, a fine time will be had by several at the ring on January 21 [illegible] Fidel La Barba. The latter is far from being any man's soap; in fact he looked the part of a real champion in his only appearance in the East.

Clark's record is impressive. In 38 fights he has battled exactly 400 [illegible] rounds with [illegible]

GRIFFIN DEFEATS NICK MADONNA

Lawrence, Dec. 18.—Red Griffin of Chelsea was awarded the decision over Nick Madonna of Lexington after 10 rounds here in the final bout of an all-star card. Griffin had the edge throughout.

Wee Willie Woods of Lynn received the decision over Mickey Moran of Boston in a [illegible] bout.

Bobby Roberts of this city made a [illegible] debut by defeating Young Riley of Salem via the K. O. route [illegible]

GRANGE WILL RETURN TO MOVIES THIS WINTER

Beaumont, Tex., Dec. 18 (A. P.)—Harold (Red) Grange will return to the movies, but only for the Winter season, he said here today in commenting on reports indicating he might desert the gridiron to devote all his time to the silver screen.

The Illinois star said he intended to continue his relations with the New York Yankee professional football team which is scheduled to end its season here on January 1. He then expects to appear in perhaps two pictures filmed at Hollywood. He intends to join his team again next Fall.

Author of "Gilded Kisses"

The Thrilling Romance of a Modern Hub Youth

READ THIS FIRST

HONEY LOU HUNTLEY is private secretary to old "GRUMPY" WALLACK, head of the Wallack factory in Roxbury.

Everyone likes Honey Lou from ANN LUDLOW, the office vamp, to JOE MEADOWS, the shipping clerk.

Young JACK WALLACK comes to work in his father's factory. He falls in love with Honey Lou and she with him.

At a party given by ANGELA ALLEN, in love with Jack, Honey Lou drinks two cocktails, thinking they are fruit punch.

TIM DONEGAL, a friend of Jack's, begins to be attentive. One night when the two are at an out of town inn, with Honey Lou's half-sister, MARGRET MOODY, and DR. STEVE MAYHEW, they are joined by Angela and Jack. Margret sums Angela up as a "cat."

One night while Margret is out on her Summer vacation, her supposed sweetie, Dr. Mayhew, he begins to make love to Honey Lou. Honey Lou is astounded.

Jack is angrily jealous with Honey Lou because she let Steve come to the house in Margret's absence. The day Margret comes home, Lou and she stop at the factory to get some money. Margret overhears someone talking in "Grumpy's" office, and eavesdrops.

Jack finds Lou taking part in a Charleston contest in a picture show. He is shocked and disgusted, just as her mother is, and cannot see what a lark it is for Honey Lou.

Honey Lou makes up her mind to leave the Wallack factory, and forget Jack if she can.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

WHEN A WORD OF APPRECIATION IS NOT AMISS

When a man provides a good and comfortable home he deserves to find it clean and tidy when he re urns home at night.

And if he finds it wellkept and his evening meal on time, he should show his appreciation by being a cheerful and good-natured dinner companion.

Men have to be on time in the work-a-day world and they have a right to expect that the care of the home shall be conducted upon much the same principle, with each successive process taken care of at the right time.

In case of illness he should not complain or make the ailments harder to bear, he should be willing to help out. But when health is good and matters move normally a man has a right to expect a well-conducted household.

There are not many men who are ugly under such conditions.

Most men appreciate the home where soap and water have been used freely and the table is a welcome to meals.

But once in a while there is a man so selfish that he can accept the effort and sacrifice it requires to keep a home well, and take it as a matter of course. You don't want to be this k— you?

DAILY SHORT STORY

SCORES

By Eudora R. Richardson

IN the gathering dusk the bank seemed to Howard more than ever like an ornate mausoleum. Yet as long as James Woodward occupied the cage across the aisle Howard had no inclination to leave. Home on Saturday night meant nothing more than baked beans and a mother who would seek to fill her empty day with questions.

Howard lafted his pen into the glass receptacle, and in so doing scattered a thousand tiny shots over the marble floor. James Woodward started, glanced toward Howard and turned again to his work. Howard hated James Woodward with the accumulated hatred of years. Everything Howard had wanted, James had gotten. . . . . Only Howard knew by what trickery. Then there had been Clarissa. Always there had been Clarissa Howard had loved her; James had married her. Clarissa of the clear blue eyes and cold tinted hair. There was left now only emptiness and hatred of James.

But suddenly something seemed about to happen. Perhaps peace was coming through a strange, vague revenge. So many times, though Howard had waited always to fail. At high school for instance, when James had won a prize with Howard's stolen essay there had been no way to prove the theft. In football practice when Howard and James ere been nip and tuck for quarterback James had broken Howard's ankle by a malicious throw. James had made the team. Howard sat sandaled and maimed watching the school's victory, seeing James carried on the shoulders of his classmates. Then there had been no chance for vengeance—but now now.

From lowered eyelids Howard watched the cage across the aisle. James slammed his ledger shut with a bang that resounded through the empty cavern.

"Settled out but found it." James snapped nervously.

Howard took his cash to the vault; James followed with his. The quick, heavy steps of the two men resounded through the bank, ascended to the ceiling, descended to the floor. Howard trembled with a fear born of premonition.

"I'll set the clock and close the vault. You go on." James directed.

James was assistant cashier. Howard was only a teller. There was nothing to do but obey. Howard opened the outer door and waited. Soft snow flakes, like a cloud of candlelties, brushed his cheek, covered his clothing. It was logical to go home, but something held him.

A man waited on the corner—Gilchrist, the professional gambler. He was looking toward the bank, waiting—not for Howard—then for James. Howard rounded the corner. In a recess between two buildings he waited. The men would come this way. There was no other.

A sound of feet upon the pavement! James and Gilchrist approached. Howard listened. He felt like a thief. He loathed himself.

"I've got to have the money, Gilchrist threatened.

"I'll bring it to you in the morning," James countered.

"Don't believe you can get it—Voices were drowned in the darkness. So James had been gambling Gilchrist wanted his money; James was trying to get it for him. By stealing it, of course. James had waited to set the time clock. He was planning to take the money from the vault. Howard's teeth chattered and his blood ran cold. James Woodward's caught at last! Years of this sort of thing. Dishonest before, criminal now.

Howard returned quickly to the bank, let himself in, tip-toed through echoing spaces to the vault. He pressed the electric button. The vault's clock was revealed in an illuminating flash. It was set for 1 o'clock. At that time the door could be swung open. Then James would reset the clock for Monday morning. Howard crept again through the stifling, heating darkness out into the dry-flaked night. On and on he walked. All the starved years had come to focal point. Waiting hadn't mattered. Defeats hadn't mattered. Losing Clarissa hadn't mattered.

Then out of the blur thoughts took form. On the corner stood Carney a policeman he knew. Howard stopped in front of him.

"I think there's going to be trouble at the bank tonight," he said. "Can ou meet me in the alley at half past twelve?"

"Sure," the man nodded.

Then Howard walked on. Four terrible hours to kill. Supper—his mother might as well go home. Yet the time did go at last, leaving Howard old and haggard with his passage.

At half past twelve he was at the bank again. Darkness wrapped him like a cloak smothered him in its folds. The clock in the foyer ticked thunderously. Choking, stumbling, breath wracking his body, Howard fought his way to the rear entrance and unlocked the door. Carney was waiting in phlegmatic silence.

"Come when I whistle," Howard directed and again let himself be enveloped by the darkness within the bank.

Hidden near the vault, he waited. The clock chimed twelve-forty-five and continued to tick away the seconds. In the distance the creak of the front door. A pale rectangle of light from the street lamp. A step within the bank. A yellow stream from something held in a man's hand. James' face, ashen, old in the wan light. Howard waiting, breathing, yet dying within. Why had he ceased hating James? A whirring from the clock—one o'clock chiming. James Woodward's hand upon the lock. The great door swinging open. James stepped within, fumbling coin, rattling paper. A whistle and all would be over—old scores evened at last. Why couldn't he hate James?

Howard stepped from the hiding place at the door of the vault, pistol in hand.

"James," he said in a voice that sounded queer. "There's a police man outside. This whistle will call him."

Howard touched the button that turned on the vault light. Against the steel walls James cringed stricken eyes staring at Howard.

"Don't— God — Howard — don't— Clarissa. I've got to have the money. Clarissa—a baby in the Spring," he stammered.

"How much you need?" Howard asked. He felt drugged. It was a dream—a delirium.

"A thousand dollars," Jas moaned.

"I'll give you the money. Got that much."

"I—I can't. . . "

"I'll write the check now and give it to you at the door." Clarissa in the spring. Clarissa's eyes her hair. Clarissa suffering. Clarissa was not meant for suffering. Howard whipped out his pen and wrote the check.

"Now put that stuff back and we'll set the clock."

The safe door swung shu with a metallic clank. The two men walked together through the deserted mausoleum. The front door snapped behind them, and they stood together in the drifting snow. Howard stared. He was waking from a nightmare. What had happened seemed incredible.

"I forgo. to lock the back door," he said, "and to tell Carney I must've been mistaken."

"So long," called James Woodward as he pushed his way through the deepening snow.

Bitterness leaped into Howard's heart as he watched the receding figure. James by some queer grace of Fate, was always triumphant, but Howard did not care now. He had saved a man from crime, and that the skulking fellow counted— me. it was just a r all off-ri. made

"How much you need?" Howard asked. He felt drugged. It was a for the sake of the woman he love"

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS---BY HELEN ROWLAND

By HELEN ROWLAND.

ONE of the greatest gifts that God has bestowed upon woman is her ability to glorify love.

* * *

If she couldn't glorify, magnify and sanctify the prosiac and mundaine emotion which the average man offers her, there would be no such thing as love.

* * *

If she couldn't glorify her lover, no woman could lose her heart and head over the bungling creature with the stubby chin, convict haircut, casual caress, and robust appetite for roast-beef-rare, whom she calls her "Darling."

* * *

"Adorable Babykins," was what Mrs. Eleanor Mills called the pudgy, sensual and somewhat pimply-looking lv. Hall, whom she glorified into a Sir Galahad and a divinely inspired servant of the Lord.

* * *

A woman in love can see golden dreams and beautiful spirituality in the eyes of a man who is merely thinking what neat ankles she has.

* * *

She can see Hyperion's curls in a few sparse locks scattered across a man's shiny forehead, and Herculean strength and beauty in a pair of padded shoulders.

* * *

Through the rose-colored glasses of love, a bald head looks only "nice and clean" to a woman, and even a pair of number twelve golf-shoes strikes her as gorgeously "big and manish."

* * *

A combined scent of shaving-soap, hair-tonic and tobacco is incense in her nostrils when she puts her cheek against a rough serge coat.

* * *

This is why a woman seldom really loves more than once in a lifetime. She may admire, respect, and even marry another man; but once she has glorified ONE man, she never again can scrape together enough illusions to cover any man with perfection.

* * *

A woman's love is not blind! Oh no! It is merely astigmatic, myopic and positively cock-eyed. It gilds and enlarges all the charms and attractions a man possesses, and credits him with a lot that he doesn't possess.

* * *

When a man's eyes rest on a woman, he sees only what he is looking at. But when a woman looks at a man, she sees a vision of nobility, strength, beauty, brains and spirituality, such as never inhabited a dinner coat, or a suit of tweeds.

* * *

Woman's love is a mixture of divine illusion, maternal tenderness childlike inconsistency, and sublime idealism. It is born of ecstacy—and dies in agony.

* * *

A woman falls in love through her imagination, a man through his senses—and yet they both call it an "affair of the heart."

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

MOST of the department stores are so crowded with shoppers that a man goes down town on Wednesday and comes home on crutches.

ONE fellow had his arm broken so often that the doctors put a hinge on it.

HIS wife wouldn't let him keep it in a bandage. She made him carry her bundles in the sling.

HE got home the other evening and discovered that his ear was missing. He'd been robbed while his back was turned.

BUT he was tickled to death his face wasn't lifted.

ONE woman says she's going to buy her husband a suspension bridge this year because she can probably get waited on quicker.

A WOMAN sued a large shop the other day because the manager wouldn't let her little boy play merry go 'round in the revolving door.

SHE also lost her husband in the mob. That was the only good thing she had to say about the place.

THE department store couldn't loosie her husband, but they found her another one.

SHE didn't care who he was as long as he paid for her purchases.

SHE had a perfect right to keep him, somebody else was using hers.

THE fellow wasn't very good looking, but he was the best the store could find.

SHE can drag him around the city for a few days and then return him to the lost and found department.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

"THIS shall be his," said one who watched the child within its mother's arms—one who had passed beyond earth's regions wild, beyond all earth's alarms. "He shall have power to so enthrall the land with charm of lofty thought that all men can but answer his command, in his sweet snares be caught." Another, looking down to where the earth in golden splendor shone, cried out: "His life shall know no lack, no dearth; all wealth all art, his own." But of the group who in that starry place looked down to where he lay, the youngest flower of their ancient race, one spoke, half sad, half gay: "I once loved earth and all things lovely there, so to earth's child my heritage is this: A little hope to make each day more fair, a little love, foretelling Heaven's bliss."

It's one of the distressing effects of old-fashioned Christmas Shopping. It ruins people's nerves for the thorough enjoyment of the Holiday Season.
